

The Boston Globe

BostonGlobe.com

West Weekly

<https://www.bostonglobe.com/metro/regionals/west/2016/07/22/the-informer-new-pizza-parlor-and-fitness-club-debut/E1aCuBDcQMVINqIaDAof6I/story.html>

The Informer

By Debora Almeida, Globe Correspondent - July 22, 2016

Updated technology infrastructure is coming to the New England Center for Children in Southborough, which specializes in education, research, and technology for children with autism. A $3.4 million donation from Microsoft will enable the center to improve the data storage, communications, and reliability of its technology. It will upgrade to newer versions of Exchange, SQL, and Windows server. Staff and student computers will also be upgraded to Windows 10. This will provide the students with an alternative way to interact with the technology, through the upgrade's intuitive touch functions. A large percentage of the center's students are non-verbal but can use technology to communicate.

Students at the New England Center for Children try out some new technology coming to the center.